EDUCATION KIT 2017

80
ACTIVITIES!

$40
Incl. GST

Whether it's how we travel to work or school, how much and what we eat, or how we heat and cool our homes, there are many ways we could be living more sustainably.

The Mercury's Newspapers in Education program will explore this broad topic in its latest education kit for 2017: Sustainability.

This in-depth kit covers topics including our animals, energy, mining, water, waste, transport, our protected parks, our footprint more.

The Mercury will publish a 10-part poster series investigating the challenges we face, what our leaders and governments are doing and what the future holds.

The kit includes exclusive access for teachers and students to compelling National Geographic documentaries at nationalgeographic.com.au

Participating Tasmanian teachers will receive workbooks for Primary and Secondary levels including 40 activities each, to help you meet curriculum needs in Science, English, Civics and Citizenship, Ethical Capability, Geography, Economics and Business.

Class sets of the Mercury, included in the kit, will ensure students can cut out and keep the poster material.
